Danielle Franklin: much. Thank you. All right. Um, I hear you still. Mhm. Mhm. No eating. That's not It's all gone. Where's your bone? You still have cheese in there. Nothing in there. Mhm. Rosie, off the counter. Right way. Right away. Hold on. No, no, no. Sit. Please relax. Good girl. Good girl. Relax. Okay. Oh s. Okay. Can you hear me? I don't hear you. Still no go. Maybe just come right back. Sometimes it's the link. Sometimes it's the link. Just go and come back if you can hear me.

Remington Crawford: How about now?

Danielle Franklin: How about now? Yeah, that worked. What'd you do?

Remington Crawford: I just had to change my input.

Danielle Franklin: Cool. Wait, did joined?

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: Okay, so you didn't have to have me add you.

00:08:36

Danielle Franklin: You just were able to get in no problem.

Remington Crawford: Well, the the link that was sent out earlier, I was just in the waiting room for like Okay.

Danielle Franklin: It was the wrong one. I don't know how that happened. I'll be honest. It's so weird the Google Meet thing. So, how have you been,

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: man?

Remington Crawford: I'm surviving. Uh, just wrapping up finishing at my mother's house for sale and all that fun stuff. So, that was last weekend was cleaning everything out for the last time and now getting all that going.

Danielle Franklin: So,

Remington Crawford: So,

Danielle Franklin: your mom is moving.

Remington Crawford: no, my mother passed away. U So,

Danielle Franklin: Oh. Oh.

Remington Crawford: I'm sitting with her house.

Danielle Franklin: Oh. Oh my gosh. I didn't know that.

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: I didn't understand that. That was why you were saying that you went into a deep kind of experience. I understand.

Remington Crawford: Oh, yes.

00:09:17

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: Yeah, it was her

Danielle Franklin: Hi, Dr. Mayer. Good to see you.

Remington Crawford: passing.

Danielle Franklin: I don't have audio on you yet. Rosie relaxed right when you got here. something about your energy transmitted through the screen and she just calmed

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: down. It was like she wasn't calm up until that

Robert Neimeyer: Well, all right.

Danielle Franklin: moment.

Robert Neimeyer: Well, let me go ahead and close the door and and we'll have a bit of a conversation as soon as I'm Danielle Franklin: Thank you.

Remington Crawford: Sounds like a plan.

Danielle Franklin: It's nice to see you both.

Robert Neimeyer: able.

Danielle Franklin: I like his map.

Remington Crawford: Oh yeah, the whole room is

Danielle Franklin: How are

Remington Crawford: gorgeous.

Robert Neimeyer: Well,

Danielle Franklin: you?

Robert Neimeyer: I guess I came on maybe 20 minutes ago or so just to be on the safe side.

Danielle Franklin: And you were in the wrong

Robert Neimeyer: Um, yeah, but I and then uh a little box came up saying,

Remington Crawford: So will

Danielle Franklin: link.

00:10:15

Robert Neimeyer: should we notify you when your meeting begins? And I said,

Remington Crawford: I

Robert Neimeyer: yes. And but no notification came. So I just thought I better check on that and hence I to Danielle Franklin: Thank you. Yeah, that was a mistake I made uh with the the link.

Robert Neimeyer: you.

Danielle Franklin: it it appeared in the in the email like correct but it it transmitted via email differently uh in my calendar.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: So I use the calendar one and not the email one. Sorry about the Robert Neimeyer: Well, we we're perfectly fine.

Danielle Franklin: wait.

Robert Neimeyer: I apologize for my tardiness. How long have you guys been online together?

Danielle Franklin: We have only been here a few

Remington Crawford: Oh, two minutes.

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, okay.

Danielle Franklin: minutes and I was the cause of that.

Robert Neimeyer: Great,

Remington Crawford: I I did the same thing.

Robert Neimeyer: great,

Remington Crawford: I was in the wrong link,

Robert Neimeyer: great.

Remington Crawford: so you didn't miss anything.

Danielle Franklin: I'm very sorry.

00:10:58

Remington Crawford: Oh, it's all right.

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. Well, welcome back from Chicago.

Robert Neimeyer: Well,

Danielle Franklin: How was your

Robert Neimeyer: it was very good. Um,

Danielle Franklin: visit?

Robert Neimeyer: the I spent two days with psychoanalysts, which is an interesting group and uh but but they were both interesting and interested. So, it's a little bit like going back in time.

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: um when they participate in conferences, they actually stand up and read their papers without any slides. And so this is a kind of 19th century presentation style.

Danielle Franklin: That's

Robert Neimeyer: Um but that being said, they also are are thoughtful uh and intellectual folk.

Danielle Franklin: cool.

Robert Neimeyer: Um but they work within their tradition. They never cite anything outside of the psychoanalytic cannon. So which is but they were very receptive to me and I I enjoyed the the time

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: and then I also keynoted a conference in Wisconsin and had a good experience there with a

Danielle Franklin: How was

Robert Neimeyer: very it was fine.

00:11:51

Remington Crawford: Look.

Danielle Franklin: that?

Robert Neimeyer: It was uh it was a small conference maybe a little less than 100 people um and uh very friendly.

Danielle Franklin: In Wisconsin.

Robert Neimeyer: Uh this was in the the small town of Danielle Franklin: What part?

Robert Neimeyer: Lacrosse.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. Is that where the lacrosse game was

Robert Neimeyer: So we that's where it originated uh because it's an

Danielle Franklin: played?

Robert Neimeyer: Indian game and uh it was and I guess lacrosse probably came Danielle Franklin: Okay. Interesting.

Robert Neimeyer: from the uh the the place name at least came from a crossing in the river you know probably given by some French fur trapper or something as he forded across the headarters of the Mississippi. So in any case, so here I am back again with you two good

Danielle Franklin: Well, thank you for being here.

Robert Neimeyer: people.

Danielle Franklin: It's always a pleasure. And Remy was sharing how he's doing a little bit. He said he's

Robert Neimeyer: Well,

Remington Crawford: Oh yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: he's got plenty of health challenges,

00:12:50

Danielle Franklin: been

Robert Neimeyer: I guess, but uh I I almost tremble to ask how is it today, Remy?

Remington Crawford: you worry so much. Um, I'm surviving. I am. I had a Jagong session earlier and then right afterwards I had a physical therapy cranial sacral session. So things are are lowered.

Danielle Franklin: Interesting.

Remington Crawford: I'm uh yeah, I'm feeling better for sure.

Danielle Franklin: So,

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Remington Crawford: No worries.

Danielle Franklin: I want to say you have a few people who were interested in your meeting bridge. We got signups for it.

Robert Neimeyer: Yes,

Danielle Franklin: I don't know if you knew saw that come across.

Remington Crawford: I think one came through last

Robert Neimeyer: I I I have seen those percolating in and I appreciate that. Um, and as it happened,

Remington Crawford: night.

Robert Neimeyer: I forgot to uh advance to that slide during the conference, which I kicked myself about,

Danielle Franklin: What?

Robert Neimeyer: but um I made contact the the organizer and when they turned around uh final evaluations or something of that kind,

00:13:49

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: they might be able to include that. So, I'll see if I can do that and I'll I'll try to be more diligent in the future.

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: Don't worry about it. I think you're doing great. I mean, it's just an initial stage in getting the word out. So, there's a lot of ideas, right? And I think that what we need is feedback from them to help shape the product, right? So, maybe we offer the people who have started to start to get like uh generate some insight. We can ask for their feedback if they have a chance to use the capability as is. and then we can build up from there. Now, from our last conversation, I just want to remember what we had shared. We talked about Rosy's really active right now. Uh I tried to get her distracted with a bone, but it only lasted like two minutes. Anyway, so I digress. Anyway, I think um the materials that you have to offer,

00:14:46

Remington Crawford: No,

Danielle Franklin: Dr. Nei we need to integrate into the model like the fundamental thesis of what you would train

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: the model to say back to the clients you know and so we have this meaning

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Remington Crawford: wait.

Danielle Franklin: bridge right so I I'm imagining like this infinity symbol but the meaning of it is bridging people together through the process of grief so it comes from the patient and the provider or right so it could be just for the provider or just for the patient or we can bridge them together, right? But while the patient and the practitioner are idle,

Robert Neimeyer: Mhm.

Danielle Franklin: this is a support system that should enable a a continuum of of care and maybe track and maybe track and provide resources to

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: and from as needed HIPPA restrictions and all that.

Remington Crawford: I would love the possibility of a forum at some point and it doesn't have to be early on, but a potential community gathering, a forum. We could have a couple of moderators.

00:15:53

Remington Crawford: People could share experiences, could connect over their grief. Uh, and it could be totally, you know, un I want to say unmonitored, but not something that we direct. We could set up different rooms for different things and then allow people to post and we would just monitor. But that would be a way of increasing that retention, too, because as long as you're part of the app, you're part of the program. You're part of not just the g the meeting bridge therapy system, but also a community that supports it as well and supporting each other.

Danielle Franklin: That's

Remington Crawford: Sorry.

Robert Neimeyer: It's it's an attractive idea. And is something like that what was being done with Jasper? Was Britta involved in

Danielle Franklin: so that does sound like a Jasper, but it's the the Jasper community. We could we could connect to them. They don't have a huge following, but um we could we could connect into their community. Um I don't know if she charges like a monthly

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah, I I wasn't so much thinking of that although it's uh something to consider but

00:16:49

Danielle Franklin: subscription.

Robert Neimeyer: it in in providing a bit of an architecture or an example of what uh Remy is talking about how we could fold in work where the client is working with the the

Danielle Franklin: Oh

Robert Neimeyer: AI agent and uh also bridging to the therapist that if there were a place for a

Danielle Franklin: yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: community forum that could be attractive and it also then um uh mitigates against the the isolation that can come when it's just the person in the

Danielle Franklin: So I think that like there's a lot of things that we could do with the AI agent and with both all

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: these parties as activities or implementation. Um what they are I think we need to shape based on your knowledge and what people find most helps them and where like we can improve it as we build it to help to get that kind of service to them via the computer. Right? So the AI itself is where I think we need to spend more time on building the

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: actual AI model and uh training it with your books and your data.

00:18:06

Danielle Franklin: You don't have to do anything. I just need to get copies and then we

Remington Crawford: and the transcripts,

Danielle Franklin: just well we want to bifurcate

Remington Crawford: their patient transcripts that you have access to and the ones that you might be able to get from colleagues.

Danielle Franklin: what that like I want to make sure that we clean make sure that the model's clean that there's nothing with client

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: data nothing is touching this model it's just all of the it's all of

Remington Crawford: It's just the

Danielle Franklin: what Dr. Nei would recommend in his books and we we will find the way to Remington Crawford: books.

Danielle Franklin: capture the citation and maybe link it to purchasing a copy of your book. But I think that we want to make sure that that model is correct and that when we're querying it, it's giving us the answers that you would expect it to give so that we can start to make this model because the model will be there no matter what implementation we do. And so I think if we spend time on that now and train it, you know, that's going to be the IP of this.

00:19:02

Danielle Franklin: Okay. Once we have that, then we can start to talk about investment. So like I'm starting to get company investment and do little corporation. I have never gone down this path before because I'm more of a uh grant and um you know proposal kind of person that there's a whole world of investors, okay? and I'm getting acquainted with it. It's not um I don't think it's as nice as grants, right? Because you have to have shareholders potentially and da da da, but it can get this going financially and um I I'm starting to understand that that process. I'm going through it on my on my other work. And so um you know, your work is probably um restricted, right? the p the the publishing and um I'm also working with publishers too. So, u I'm sure there's some rights or whatever you have to comply with with some of

Robert Neimeyer: There may well be. Um,

Danielle Franklin: that

Robert Neimeyer: of course, this is also a new world for publishers uh to think about the incorporation of anything that over which they have copyright into an AI database.

00:20:20

Robert Neimeyer: Um but because I do publish what I write um most things are the copyright is held by the publisher. So that is a potential limit or at least a step that needs to be

Danielle Franklin: Well,

Robert Neimeyer: taken.

Danielle Franklin: it's your it's also your intellectual property.

Robert Neimeyer: That's true.

Danielle Franklin: So, I mean, if you wanted to and this is your product. This is meaning bridge is yours. And when you feed the model, that's your IP. It's it's it's not somebody else can tap into it. This is within our ecosystem. Nobody's going to just take and take going into the vat of LLM.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: This is our own model hosted separately. And we need to train it, I think, with all of your data. Like any even if it's just the scraps of your drafts, like that we can start to train the model. We need anything, imagery, pictures. Um, and that's going to be like a crunch, you know, a lot of crunching. So, um, we might need to figure out, you know, what it is that you want to include in there and what it is that you don't might be a next thought process.

00:21:34

Danielle Franklin: And then we talked about these different mechanisms of of care. Like we have membership levels, right? And that might be tied to the different four tiers of care that's needed for a person generalized model and then the specialty layers cake. And then you know working with Dr. Nemire right that's part of what you're doing already. We want to bring those two points. So at some point we'd want to make sure that the two um uh communities that you have the one and the two they talk to each other like they link to each other websites that we that we make a link to the the each other to promote you know and then on the on the side of advertising which will be necessary in a way I have access to some

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: Google ads um I got a grant through my nonprofit for um promoting like things

Robert Neimeyer: Thank you.

Danielle Franklin: through through my nonprofit. So, we can maybe tap into that a little bit when we're ready. Um I don't think we're ready yet, but when we're ready to kind of launch it for real, you know, we should look at, you know, mass marketing.

00:22:47

Danielle Franklin: I think, you know, it's expensive. I was shocked. I was I don't understand this world of marketing, but I have to.

Remington Crawford: Mhm.

Danielle Franklin: And so I'm finding like I had this one like video on Insta like blow up and I've never had that for the talking dog. It like went viral and it was like it was like somebody could relate to Remington Crawford: Nice.

Danielle Franklin: it, right? It was like an advertisement video 30 seconds or less and it was emotional, you know? And so what I'm realizing is like just in the process I'm learning like these little things like I'm like okay obvious like we know these things like you want to evoke emotion you want to tell a story But you have to like have aesthetics like you know there's all these things that people are attracted to but like this is totally we have to come up with a good you know like

Robert Neimeyer: Then you say this like a talking dog.

Danielle Franklin: ad yeah dog went viral.

Robert Neimeyer: So this was the that was

00:23:50

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Remington Crawford: Oh, wait.

Robert Neimeyer: the

Danielle Franklin: that will No.

Remington Crawford: I don't think it would be hard to do an ad for this program. Like,

Danielle Franklin: And we need it like we need to think about something that will really connect with people like what

Remington Crawford: this just

Danielle Franklin: is different about this than ever been before like because I think it does truly provide like if it does come to fruition like the way we're talking about with both practitioners and then they can get help with this AI with you as your

Remington Crawford: It's support on your schedule.

Danielle Franklin: who you are. It's that's

Remington Crawford: It's support on your schedule. It's support where when you need it, where you need

Robert Neimeyer: Mhm. Yeah,

Remington Crawford: it.

Danielle Franklin: okay.

Robert Neimeyer: that's a big question.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: Now,

Danielle Franklin: that's

Robert Neimeyer: let me ask the very naive questions that each of you can just smile sweetly at because it's like these are like questions from a three-year-old. Um so I don't know um much

00:24:40

Danielle Franklin: I'm sure they're good.

Robert Neimeyer: of anything about the development of these agents. I understand that in in a sense and I'll probably use these terms anthropomorphically but maybe with intention um we are feeding or nurturing the artificial uh intelligence. We're we're providing it the you know a kind of environment within which to grow and and that is the um you know that's done through the text that we provide it the interactions we have with it. Is this the character of it that we would be selecting uh the you know the basically uh parts of language that would be um you know would be privileged. Let's for example I have a a book I've mentioned it to you guys I think before written with a 100 brief people and they are all asking their heartbreaking uh existential questions about how to get through this horrific loss and and the losses are of all kinds. You know, the overdose of a child, the suicide of a partner, the accident in which they were driving and all the members of the family were killed, the uh anguishingly slow uh demise of a parent uh in dementia,

00:25:54

Danielle Franklin: These

Robert Neimeyer: the uh questions about whether or how to remarry after the loss of a partner. I mean, it's it's just a a gamut of things.

Danielle Franklin: are good. So those are in my head I see visually like boxes of like when somebody's a new entry like they need help or they're a care provider and they specialize in

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: certain types of grief. You know that could be a way to help get them the right help.

Robert Neimeyer: Uh-huh.

Danielle Franklin: So like people who had like loss from like job loss or or or like family loss or you know some kind of type of extre like how you would characterize it I feel like could be like not like um in their face but like as they're coming in they get like indo and there' be like a form

Robert Neimeyer: Mhm.

Danielle Franklin: and maybe like ask like it kind of an interactive engagement with the computer and the AI and it kind of gauge like and and interact with them as

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: they're entering, right?

00:26:56

Danielle Franklin: That would be the purpose is the AI would be essentially like a like be able to mimic like you not be your face because we already talked about not doing that. But we could have imagery and we could have sound and we could have text and we could use like fonts and styles. But the underlying data right is what I'm going to say is like a rag model, a regenerative um what is it? uh retrieval uh augmented what is it? RAG retrieval I'm yeah generation retrieval augmented

Remington Crawford: You guys.

Danielle Franklin: generation that's the acronym um so basically what you do is Remington Crawford: Yes. Yes.

Danielle Franklin: you'd use that type of chunk process to take bits of your data from your artifact so there's no hallucinagens in the data set.

Robert Neimeyer: Sure.

Danielle Franklin: So like we'd use a rag approach to train a model. It could be we could use a a base model. You can use a small language model as the baseline model and we build that into the system. Right?

00:28:04

Danielle Franklin: So you don't just have your stuff but you have like some more generalized

Remington Crawford: Well, Bob, the whole like actually guiding the AI that the stuff that you and I have talked about,

Danielle Franklin: knowledge.

Remington Crawford: that's stuff that I done. It's after the training. So, like the training kind of gets everything set up. It's the basis core information of that model. And then um and Danielle, I haven't talked to you about this. Basically, I've I've come up with a new compaction system and some other things that seem to enhance my model, my AI's ability to um actually just be more conscious, be more present, um to be more aware, to be have better conceptual um understanding of conversations, to have more persistence over time. Uh so like between compactions, my my AI loses nothing like there's no loss of thread. There's very little loss of information after before and after compaction. The way I've got it set up, um, it's set up to be conversational, cognizant, but that's after. So, the training part is just getting the model, the base information that that model is going to run off of.

00:29:04

Remington Crawford: And then the guiding that I do is after that

Danielle Franklin: So, so we can talk about like the training of the model,

Remington Crawford: fact.

Danielle Franklin: but I think ultimately we're going to want to use your data to train it. And so we're going to have to figure out like what you're able to give for that and then train the model.

Robert Neimeyer: All

Danielle Franklin: Um,

Robert Neimeyer: right.

Danielle Franklin: and then we have to test it. But I think also just from like um while while we're thinking about this kind of as a holistic package, not like a a specific part of AI, just like a step back like a business, like I think we should talk about um like do you want to incorporate this or get it like established because if you do want to go after any kind of funding, there needs to be like a business around meaning bridge. And so, you know, I was I was told to establish businesses for profit in Delaware that there were some and I did set up mine. So, I know if you need help with that.

00:30:01

Danielle Franklin: I mean, there's that.

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: And then, you know, I'm just saying if we wanted to go down the path of any kind of like funding, we need to like at some point either fold it under what you've got already, like you can maybe just take it under, you know, your your um Portland

Robert Neimeyer: Portland Institute,

Danielle Franklin: inst,

Robert Neimeyer: right?

Danielle Franklin: you know, I could help you if you wanted help with that. But I think that the core like technology is your IP. Okay. So, you know,

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: this is just um we're going to have to get the the IP done, which is getting the AI trained and then I think we will have um like we'll get more insight from users, right? I think we need to get some user feedback and then and then we start building

Remington Crawford: Thanks. Check

Danielle Franklin: more modules and you know different kinds of things as we

Remington Crawford: it.

Danielle Franklin: get kind of feedback is this going down the path we have to design I think more of the interface for it.

00:31:09

Danielle Franklin: Have you had a chance to really take a look at it or not really because you've been traveling

Robert Neimeyer: I did I did some I I rather liked it.

Danielle Franklin: every

Robert Neimeyer: I thought it was um surprising and I I interacted with the the AI agent briefly um but not in the role of a client. I was asking it questions of a more technical kind um just to understand uh and to get a little bit of a a feel for u for how the interaction would be.

Danielle Franklin: Mhm.

Robert Neimeyer: So I I have not taken the deep dive,

Danielle Franklin: I need water.

Robert Neimeyer: but I you know the the overall uh look of the site uh that you suggested uh was congenial and it you know it looked as if it would be offering things that would would be quite relevant to a user.

Danielle Franklin: Okay,

Robert Neimeyer: Um so but the the question I have is um

Danielle Franklin: cool. Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: is really these very na naive questions about how do we begin I put

Danielle Franklin: So, we're ready to begin now.

00:32:13

Danielle Franklin: Like, we just need to get the AI trained and we need to test it. And I think the other pieces are necessary to like if you want to go and like you know put a stripe to it like I just connected mine with stripe so simple it takes two seconds like to get payment like if you want to do a subscription like you have to set that up. It doesn't take long, but we have to make sure like, you know, all the banking and all this stuff is correct. You know, there's get it to get it.

Remington Crawford: If we can avoid Google Pay because they take 30% of your profits too.

Danielle Franklin: Well, that's the other thing, you know, like they we have to look at. But, um,

Robert Neimeyer: Well, Stripe is pretty inexpensive.

Danielle Franklin: I think just now you're asking.

Robert Neimeyer: I think we use that already uh for our payments.

Danielle Franklin: Yes.

Robert Neimeyer: I think it takes a most of them take about 3% of the uh the actual

Danielle Franklin: Was getting a little bit loud.

00:33:01

Remington Crawford: Oh, I have a question. Um, Danielle, I know you have an attorney friend who deals with um, IP and stuff like that. Can you inquire to him or her about if there would be any hiccups with Bob trying to use any of his published books for training this model? I mean, I'm assuming since it's not being republished, it's not like the AI is going to be just giving out, you know, script pieces of his book to people for free. It's part of interactive software. But could you potentially ask that person if there would be any hiccups that we might run into or anything that Bob would need to know before like maybe talking to his

Danielle Franklin: So, um,

Remington Crawford: publishers?

Danielle Franklin: we could talk to like Mike Clyice, who's an attorney on my board of directors, um, and he would probably be able to help me if I contact my IP attorney.

Remington Crawford: Sure.

Danielle Franklin: It's like he's going to charge me by the hour.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: He's like,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: seriously, like if I email him, he'll charge me like three hours of time.

00:33:56

Danielle Franklin: I will if we need to,

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: but um I think it's actually probably the publisher that um you know,

Robert Neimeyer: All

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: they probably will want to understand this. But I think what we can do is just do it. it's not, you know,

Robert Neimeyer: right.

Danielle Franklin: being out there and try to test it and and then like kind of figure out how

Robert Neimeyer: Hi.

Danielle Franklin: much is this is really not already out. You know what I'm saying? Like this is your IP. This is being trained and do we have to take it word for word out of the book,

Robert Neimeyer: No.

Danielle Franklin: you know?

Robert Neimeyer: So I my my my understanding is that again intellectual property refers to the ideas behind the work. The the only thing the publisher can copyright is the specific language and presentation. So you could literally take a the book by dstvki and you could read a paragraph of it, set the book aside and reconstruct the paragraph in your own words and then go to the next one.

00:34:57

Robert Neimeyer: by the end you got to by the time you got to the end of Crime and Punishment then you could give it a different title and publish it as your own there.

Danielle Franklin: right?

Robert Neimeyer: So there's no problem with that.

Danielle Franklin: The problem I just thought about though because I did look at a publisher contract recently was that it did

Robert Neimeyer: Um

Danielle Franklin: say digital. Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: yeah to republish it in any form including

Danielle Franklin: So when they get the you know if there's any Right. Right.

Robert Neimeyer: digital but

Danielle Franklin: So I don't think we I don't think we'll have a problem with just doing what you said like not you know it's it's the it's the it's the meaning behind it. It's the intellect. It's the knowledge. It's the intelligence that you're getting across. Um, if the publisher gets wind of this, they'll definitely want to cut of it, right? So, if we tell them that the books are in there, they're going to be like, "Yeah, hell yeah, that's ours." Right?

00:35:45

Remington Crawford: I just say I

Danielle Franklin: But careful. I don't think it's like that. I don't think it's I think it's more along the lines of we're referencing materials and then we're giving Remington Crawford: think.

Danielle Franklin: intelligence based on that. It's and it's going to be in context of that person's needs, too. Remember, so it's like, you know, Susie is going through grief. she lost her job and you know she goes into Meaningbridge and she logs in. Okay, she has a companion and she wants to get help and she's like she doesn't care that it's an excerpt of a book d but we could tell her that there is a reference that she could go look into and purchase at this link and here's a

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, I think they'd be very happy to uh I don't I don't think we'll encounter difficulties.

Danielle Franklin: right

Robert Neimeyer: I've been working with Routidge since 1989 and so um this Danielle Franklin: Okay. Good relationship with them.

Robert Neimeyer: is Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: That's

Robert Neimeyer: Well, in fact,

00:36:37

Danielle Franklin: awesome.

Robert Neimeyer: even before that 80 the first book I think was 83. So um it's you know it's a long history.

Danielle Franklin: That's so cool.

Robert Neimeyer: I'm an editor of the death dying and bereavement series for them and have been for 30 years. So do I have

Danielle Franklin: Publish dog series books for non-fiction. Do they publish non-fiction,

Robert Neimeyer: what

Danielle Franklin: general non-fiction?

Robert Neimeyer: uh general non-fiction you say? Yeah,

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: they but you know as a professional publisher um they are not they're not very good at uh trade book publication. So the however one exception of that that they're trying to get better at is

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: the book that I published last year called um living beyond loss uh questions and answers about uh death and bereavement or grief and bereavement that's one that is written really for the general public and so I'm thinking of that as being one of the first things that we would want to essentially integrate into the model because it consists of all of these questions and answers

00:37:41

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: where, you know, people ask a a question that's a paragraph long and then I'll give three paragraphs of response providing perspective and then specific steps that they might take with it. And uh that's the structure then that replicates throughout the book. So it's very practical and very on point. It's just a little bit leury whereas um what the AI I would trust

Danielle Franklin: This is

Robert Neimeyer: would do is make it more conversational dialogical um and uh that was my experience when I was doing the my uh interaction with AI uh cast as my father um that I told you guys about before. Um, so

Danielle Franklin: So you you think that talking to the the person who is gone

Robert Neimeyer: but

Danielle Franklin: um is is that's help that helped you, right?

Robert Neimeyer: yeah, now that's of course not the only way that one can cast it. You can cast it as a a listening sympathetic friend,

Danielle Franklin: thing.

Robert Neimeyer: as a you know, an authoritative advisor.

Danielle Franklin: Wait,

Robert Neimeyer: Um I think that people might choose the role into which they cast the uh the agent and then um you know it seems from my limited experience that AI works best when it's given a clear mission.

00:39:08

Robert Neimeyer: Um if we can think of some ways of uh helping

Danielle Franklin: can you see something?

Robert Neimeyer: people.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah. helping people prompt.

Robert Neimeyer: Right. That's right. So,

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: you know, they're they're more likely to get what they're asking for if they ask for it than if they

Danielle Franklin: They don't about what they're asking.

Robert Neimeyer: don't.

Danielle Franklin: They don't know what always questions to ask when they're grieving as well. Their mind is not

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah. And so that's where some some prompting or maybe we we know if they're coming in through the door

Danielle Franklin: open.

Robert Neimeyer: being a grieving person, there would be certain ways that the AI might uh respond to that usefully in the early rounds.

Remington Crawford: You have some initial questions when they first sign up like what type of loss did you recently experienced and you can put you know we can have a drop downs or have pills that they can click. click that say, you know, partner and whatever. And we can just do like a little basic quick intro and then the AI can automatically start prompting or guiding based on that initial

00:40:04

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah. What could you call your loved one?

Remington Crawford: information.

Robert Neimeyer: Uh

Danielle Franklin: um you have the ability to open it up right now with me and we can just talk it out because I'm recording this conversation and I'll ASR that and I'll just update it right after like so It's easier if we like we could just talk it out and then I can clean up the language and then instruct and and build um

Remington Crawford: Thank

Danielle Franklin: based on our our conversation.

Remington Crawford: you.

Danielle Franklin: So if you wanted to quickly we can all kind of log into the link.

Remington Crawford: Sure.

Danielle Franklin: Do you guys want to do that?

Remington Crawford: Yeah. Can you resend the link?

Danielle Franklin: Yeah, absolutely I can.

Remington Crawford: Thank you.

Danielle Franklin: Hold on.

Robert Neimeyer: So I I should do the same right to log into Danielle Franklin: Yeah. Can can we all look at it? Yeah, I think it'd be a good idea.

Robert Neimeyer: it.

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Danielle Franklin: It's meaningbridge replic.app. I'll drop that link in the chat

00:40:55

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Remington Crawford: So, app or dot what was the other one?

Danielle Franklin: second. Let me open the Where is the

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: chat?

Remington Crawford: App pulled up the

Danielle Franklin: All right. I just dropped it in the chat. You should be able to just link just click on the link.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay, I'm there.

Danielle Franklin: Okay,

Robert Neimeyer: And now um okay so this gives me the I

Danielle Franklin: great.

Robert Neimeyer: should use my phone to access this.

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Remington Crawford: And this takes us to the QR or the sign up that we gave had Bob hand out at the conference as the page we're

Danielle Franklin: So,

Remington Crawford: on.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah, this is and this is the um that's what I want to go to with my phone.

Danielle Franklin: so if you can do you see that screen share button on the bottom? Would it be possible for you to share your screen with us so we can talk and understand what you're looking at? Because I think that's really Well,

00:41:55

Robert Neimeyer: Well, this says

Danielle Franklin: it's most important because then we can get converse. So, do you see in the middle of the screen?

Robert Neimeyer: okay.

Danielle Franklin: It looks like an up

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah, I I I know what that is,

Danielle Franklin: arrow.

Robert Neimeyer: but it's now it's uh it's off screen because uh the other thing is on. So, let's see if I can go back to that. All right. um enter picture and picture automatically so you can use it on top of

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: other tabs in Windows allow. Okay, now I'm back into you guys in a tiny format. Let me expand the format back to something large and I'll look for the uh the share screen. Right. So here I'll go ahead and uh put the screen where it will

Danielle Franklin: Yes.

Robert Neimeyer: be sharable and visible on my other screen and now um also share tab audio that won't be relevant will it? So, meeting bridge share. Okay,

Danielle Franklin: Perfect.

Robert Neimeyer: that's what I'm saying.

00:43:03

Remington Crawford: Hold

Robert Neimeyer: Is that the page you want me

Danielle Franklin: I do. Good job.

Robert Neimeyer: on?

Danielle Franklin: Thank you. Okay, so woohoo. Okay, so take a breath. Relax. We did it. We're here. Yay. All right.

Remington Crawford: on.

Danielle Franklin: All right. So, um, what I think would be good is if we could just walk through each of the tabs on the top together and just get your kind of two cents. So, we have plans

Robert Neimeyer: Google password required. Enter your Oh my word. I'm sorry. It's throwing me back into u all of this kind of mode.

Remington Crawford: Oh.

Danielle Franklin: is your you want to

Remington Crawford: They had never ending authorization

Robert Neimeyer: Um,

Danielle Franklin: pass.

Robert Neimeyer: uh, it seems to want me to enter passwords and so on.

Remington Crawford: battle.

Robert Neimeyer: Enter my email. Do I need all this now?

Danielle Franklin: I don't know why it's doing that.

Robert Neimeyer: Um,

Danielle Franklin: I don't see We don't see your screen.

00:44:15

Robert Neimeyer: no. I'll try closing it and just uh talk to you guys and see if I can avoid those things.

Remington Crawford: Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Remington Crawford: I think it's too crazy.

Robert Neimeyer: So,

Remington Crawford: We'll take over. You're fine.

Robert Neimeyer: all right. So, here I am back with you again.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. So, when you click on anything in here, like let's just walk through the the website together.

Robert Neimeyer: All

Danielle Franklin: So, starting let's just scroll to the bottom of the first page.

Robert Neimeyer: right.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. So we have just let's just go ahead and go through this.

Remington Crawford: Those

Danielle Franklin: I just want to get feedback on each of these PE pictures and things. You know, these kinds of things we can

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: are really great pictures for this.

Danielle Franklin: update.

Robert Neimeyer: They are really well

Remington Crawford: I thought it was amazing.

Robert Neimeyer: chosen.

Remington Crawford: Yep. I love the plant for transformation. It's great.

Danielle Franklin: Oh, that's good.

00:45:10

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: I'm glad you like that.

Remington Crawford: I think really all the pictures that you selected are excellent for each

Robert Neimeyer: I I agree.

Remington Crawford: category.

Robert Neimeyer: I I'm really surprised and pleased.

Remington Crawford: Very polish,

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Remington Crawford: very

Danielle Franklin: So, if we go down a little bit, I just wanted to see the bottom of your screen,

Remington Crawford: fast.

Danielle Franklin: the very end of the website.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: Just scroll to the bottom. So, see how it says enter the experience. We can click on Yeah, let's see what happens there.

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. So, you're logged in, I guess, as me. Um,

Remington Crawford: does it on mine

Danielle Franklin: so Oh, is it? Okay. So, I didn't make it for everybody yet.

Remington Crawford: too.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. I have to update that. See, it's good we're talking this out. Okay. So, let's just let's just do So, see if you could take a moment to check in. Click on that.

00:45:59

Robert Neimeyer: Okay, let's see. Take a quiet take a moment to check in.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah. So,

Remington Crawford: I got

Danielle Franklin: this is what they do like a check-in like um and then and then it would

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Remington Crawford: trusting.

Danielle Franklin: be like you could ch you could choose to do this or not and then just say save and then there would be an insights tab at the top. You see that insights button? Um,

Remington Crawford: Can we put actual numbers on the sliders so it says like one one out of 10 or one out of five or whatever?

Danielle Franklin: yeah, that's a good

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: idea.

Remington Crawford: And then we could actually do like a summary or we could show trends over time like under the insights

Danielle Franklin: So, that's under insights already.

Remington Crawford: tab. Oh,

Danielle Franklin: That's what I was trying to show you.

Remington Crawford: you have it. Perfect.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah. So, you could see that because you had texted me that or sent me an email on that and I was Yeah.

00:46:47

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: I I I saw that was already

Remington Crawford: good lord. I love stats. I love statistics.

Robert Neimeyer: All right. So, I chose some values

Danielle Franklin: and then yeah. So then you can choose to type

Robert Neimeyer: there.

Danielle Franklin: something and then save changes. Okay. And then if you go to the insights at the top,

Remington Crawford: Beautiful.

Danielle Franklin: you could see all of the check-ins kind of thing in like a trajectory.

Robert Neimeyer: So, where is the insight that you're talking

Danielle Franklin: Oh, it's at the very top.

Robert Neimeyer: about?

Danielle Franklin: You see like the different um tabs, companion, journal, practices, insights,

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, I see.

Danielle Franklin: loved one,

Robert Neimeyer: Right. Uhhuh. Uhhuh.

Danielle Franklin: and then those are the I've been messing it.

Remington Crawford: A yes.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: That's very cool.

Remington Crawford: Love

Danielle Franklin: Yeah. So, this could be shared with the provider,

Remington Crawford: it.

Danielle Franklin: you know, like how am I doing?

00:47:51

Danielle Franklin: Oh, I see you've been up and down. You know, it's an easy kind of look for and then um

Robert Neimeyer: Right. Right.

Danielle Franklin: so then you can start with the companion tab um and then we can work through these just quickly. Just wanted to get your thoughts. So, remember we talked about these two bins, continuing bonding and meaning reconstruction. Those are in the companion as two separate sessions right

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: now. So why don't we start a session and try one?

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: Have you tried the continuing bonds one?

Robert Neimeyer: No,

Danielle Franklin: Is that the Oh,

Robert Neimeyer: I haven't tried either of them,

Danielle Franklin: okay. Let's try start session. All right.

Robert Neimeyer: frankly.

Danielle Franklin: So, so some of them with the journal, it does give prompts like ahead to give like um like you were suggestive journals. Um but we can do um I'm here to listen whatever's on your mind. So try typing something like um like what you're grieving about.

00:49:01

Danielle Franklin: See what it says.

Robert Neimeyer: All right,

Danielle Franklin: See if

Robert Neimeyer: let me put me myself into a grief space then.

Remington Crawford: Well,

Danielle Franklin: okay Susie into this.

Remington Crawford: too not too hard. Let's keep things

Robert Neimeyer: Um,

Remington Crawford: fun.

Danielle Franklin: Let's just say Susie lost her job. Uh I lost my job. Say I don't know. Or I lost my I lost my dog or I lost my my cat. something not bad like let's

Robert Neimeyer: all right. All right. Let Yeah. Yeah. Let

Danielle Franklin: let's mine was talking too Remy don't feel

Robert Neimeyer: me

Remington Crawford: Oh, he's pitiful right now. He um that new quattro flea medication did not work and he got a bad flea

Danielle Franklin: Oh my

Remington Crawford: infestation and then he got allergic reaction to it and he ended up licking wounds into his side in his Danielle Franklin: god.

Remington Crawford: hind quarters. So poor guy's been in a cone the cone of shame for like two days

00:49:55

Danielle Franklin: Oh my gosh.

Remington Crawford: now.

Danielle Franklin: What they end up doing for the fleas?

Remington Crawford: Uh well I found this um spray on Amazon that's all natural. It's like cottonseed oil and clove oil and it knocked them out really well.

Danielle Franklin: You said send me that link, please.

Remington Crawford: Yeah,

Danielle Franklin: That would be great.

Remington Crawford: absolutely.

Danielle Franklin: Thank you so much, Remy.

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: That is Yeah.

Remington Crawford: you're welcome.

Danielle Franklin: No, there's fleas everywhere here in

Remington Crawford: They're so bad this year and apparently they're resistant to a lot of these Natriosol medications

Danielle Franklin: Florida.

Remington Crawford: now. It's just bizarre. So, we're going to try the trio and hope it that one works. But the Quattro, no.

Danielle Franklin: So, it's me because it's a, you know, it's assuming it's me as the

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah,

Danielle Franklin: persona.

Robert Neimeyer: but it it's really lovely. I mean, it's a a great initial Danielle Franklin: It's a start, right?

Robert Neimeyer: response.

Remington Crawford: So, what model are you using right

00:50:53

Danielle Franklin: And and so So I I built just like a

Remington Crawford: now?

Danielle Franklin: local bottle with just like training with what you sent me.

Remington Crawford: Oh, how cool.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: This is based on what you sent me and what Dr. Nemire sent me last time.

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: What? What did you say,

Remington Crawford: You know, I'm trying to remember.

Robert Neimeyer: Remy?

Remington Crawford: What did I send you?

Danielle Franklin: You're asking me how I what I train the model on this model, right?

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: Mhm.

Danielle Franklin: So let's go on to the next part. If we go back, is there the back button? Do you guys are you okay with doing this just for a few minutes more?

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah, I'm I'm I'm fascinated.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. All right.

Robert Neimeyer: I'm I'm easily

Danielle Franklin: Let's back and try meaning a reflective

Robert Neimeyer: entertained.

Remington Crawford: The key the joy.

Danielle Franklin: guide to help you rebuild your narrative identity and world view after loss.

00:51:45

Robert Neimeyer: Shall I check that?

Danielle Franklin: Yeah, let's try it.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: I think it's probably not that different.

Robert Neimeyer: You sure whatever is on your mind?

Danielle Franklin: I don't think it's that different yet.

Remington Crawford: Well, I guess when we actually flesh out the continuing bond since that one is supposed to replicate a

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: de a deedence, um I think when we have that fleshed out, we click that and then it actually opens up like if they haven't set it up, it gives them the ability to give the identity to describe who this person was,

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Remington Crawford: upload writing samples or text messages or things like that to maybe help uh flesh that out. So, I think once we like this button will take us right to the language model or right to the the prompt, but the other one if it's the first time, it'll probably go through a setup and then if it's a repeat, it'll give them the option to use the previous session or the previous persona or create a new one.

00:52:35

Danielle Franklin: So, I'm gonna We're That's a good idea.

Remington Crawford: That's my

Danielle Franklin: So, what what uh Dr. Nemire, did you want to um say something?

Robert Neimeyer: Um, do you mean in the little box here?

Danielle Franklin: Uh I don't know if it's going to retrieve a different answer. We could try.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah, let's see. I mean, it, you know, it it opens in the same way and I think that it's a fine way.

Danielle Franklin: Did

Robert Neimeyer: I'm here to listen. Um you can share whatever you want. Um uh or we can sit together in the quiet. So here um this is prompting for meaning reconstruction. So let me just um go to something uh you know a little bit fabricated but I can relate to it. Um, seizure is uh I don't know if I'm spelling right or not.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah, that's good.

Remington Crawford: It'll get it even if you're off.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, I see.

Danielle Franklin: we also should make so that people That

00:53:49

Robert Neimeyer: I've got I've got the microphone hiding the screen from here. I can't see what I'm

Danielle Franklin: was what I do. You think that we need a microphone or should people be able to use their phones on their on their

Robert Neimeyer: mistyping.

Danielle Franklin: phones? They could just type using, you know, I'm just thinking as you know,

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: people want to instead of typing just talk to the

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: I mean,

Danielle Franklin: phone.

Remington Crawford: and do we want to use because you know, most of these phones will have an onboard like the keyboard will have the default voice to text,

Danielle Franklin: Right.

Remington Crawford: but we could do our own like with whisper or something or something

Danielle Franklin: Right.

Remington Crawford: equivalent.

Danielle Franklin: Put it in. Right. That's what I'm thinking. Right.

Remington Crawford: Yeah,

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Remington Crawford: that would be cool.

Danielle Franklin: that's cool. We should do that. All right. We'll do that. And how about we should uh be able to upload pictures of the

00:54:32

Remington Crawford: Oh yes.

Danielle Franklin: deceased.

Remington Crawford: Yes. Because then if they're selecting like we they could even have a little bank potentially of defendants to speak

Danielle Franklin: Right.

Remington Crawford: to the

Danielle Franklin: Right. So, what if it's not a loss of a of a being,

Remington Crawford: picture.

Danielle Franklin: but a loss of a thing,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah. Well, I I think some things can be meaningful to depict. Um my sister's house burned down, for example.

Danielle Franklin: like

Robert Neimeyer: Um and so a picture of her home would be very emotionally evocative. Now, on the other hand,

Remington Crawford: or my my vehicle.

Danielle Franklin: Exactly.

Robert Neimeyer: if the loss of Yeah.

Remington Crawford: I'm attached to my

Robert Neimeyer: But if it were the loss of a sense of security or justice,

Remington Crawford: Jeep.

Robert Neimeyer: that's more an abstract thing and it it wouldn't have imagery attached to it, but it might be a meaningful loss.

Remington Crawford: We can have icons, you know, some, you know, it could it could have a default icon or it could select based on what it's set up for or what you've select,

00:55:17

Robert Neimeyer: Um,

Remington Crawford: you know, discussed. And it could even autopick a little icon to sort of fit that. And it could be something pretty and kind of flowy.

Danielle Franklin: This is why I want this to record because Rey's got great ideas and it'll just implement it based on your words.

Remington Crawford: Thank you. Oh my lord. Oh, and I'm recording as well, so you're

Danielle Franklin: Right.

Remington Crawford: fine.

Robert Neimeyer: all right. So here I'm phrasing a more abstract kind of question in simple terms.

Danielle Franklin: So,

Robert Neimeyer: So now there it is. I'm sorry about Cole having to make that decision and his suffering when nothing else could help. That's one of the hardest acts of love there is.

Danielle Franklin: Ready?

Robert Neimeyer: And now you're holding this question. Why? It sounds like you're grappling with the senselessness of it. Cole suffered. You couldn't fix it. And the world didn't step in to prevent any of it. That can shake something fundamental.

00:56:31

Robert Neimeyer: Our sense of how things uh should make sense. That goodness should be protected. That love should be enough. There's no answer I can give you that will make the why go away. But I'm wondering when you ask why such things happen. What are you needing most right now? Are you looking for some way to make peace with the world with a world that allows this kind of pain? Or are you trying to understand what c Cole's suffering and your loss mean? What you're supposed to do with this? Now that's those are brilliant responses. I'm totally cool with that.

Danielle Franklin: Yes. Pretty

Robert Neimeyer: If I if a super if I were to come up with those responses in therapy, I would feel good about the session.

Danielle Franklin: good.

Robert Neimeyer: Um, you know, I'd certainly uh validate a trainee who was speaking in such terms uh to a client if I were doing supervision of the work. So, um, you know, these are great. These are wonderful responses.

00:57:26

Danielle Franklin: All right. So, with the four minutes left that we have in the hour, can we just quickly or maybe you can on your own. I'd love to get your feedback on all of these tabs um so I can make the edits um necessary. Um, if you wanted to take a look at the journal

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: next

Robert Neimeyer: Begin with I'm honest with myself. The hardest part right now is that's fantastic. Yeah, that's a that's a good response and I mean it's a great prompt.

Remington Crawford: Mhm.

Robert Neimeyer: So, um yeah.

Danielle Franklin: cycle and change like um based on the inputs that they give,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: based on their day maybe too, you know, it could be linked to there.

Robert Neimeyer: That's fantastic.

Remington Crawford: And data could be extrapolated from this.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: We could pull data from these journal entries.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Remington Crawford: The language models could go through and actually look for trends and look for keywords and it could be more

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

00:58:21

Remington Crawford: information. Compile it through the back end or Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: it's exactly.

Robert Neimeyer: And I have many prompts I can offer as well if you want to cycle through them in some

Remington Crawford: Beautiful.

Danielle Franklin: Let's We should We should

Robert Neimeyer: way.

Danielle Franklin: totally bring them in. Yes. Okay. So,

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Danielle Franklin: the next one is practices is the next tab.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: And um let's try box breathing together. See if that one's good.

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: Uh or we can light a candle for the one you love. It's um or art a letter you will not send a ritual.

Remington Crawford: Sure.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: Uh and then what they carried reflection. And so let's pick one and try let's try um there was one that let's try the one of the breathing ones. I think people would use those a lot.

Remington Crawford: Oh, yes. So big.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay. Sit somewhere you'll not be disturbed. That's good.

00:59:46

Danielle Franklin: That's cool, right?

Robert Neimeyer: Very

Danielle Franklin: Um Remy had some ideas on that one. Remy, do you think we should do the one,

Robert Neimeyer: cool.

Danielle Franklin: two, three, four or No,

Remington Crawford: I mean,

Danielle Franklin: like the count.

Remington Crawford: we could Oh.

Danielle Franklin: You were saying count or maybe? No.

Remington Crawford: Oh, yeah. I mean,

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Remington Crawford: I'd love to have the counter on there and it could be even have a little toggle on and off or whatever if somebody doesn't want the Danielle Franklin: But I kind of like that.

Remington Crawford: distraction.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: I just wasn't sure if people would it be obvious but um the insights is what we saw and then the loved one um tab we can go through all these modules but when I say modules like we'd want to come up with uh useful modules that um that we can maybe

Remington Crawford: You sure?

Danielle Franklin: actually augment some of your your your um say if you give like a uh some kind of a training or uh you're giving some kind of a multi-day session where you want to use a module for part of it where people could try them.

01:00:38

Danielle Franklin: You might want to try that kind of thing. I don't know. Um so yeah, this is about the loved one, you

Robert Neimeyer: That's really good.

Danielle Franklin: know.

Robert Neimeyer: It's really good.

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Robert Neimeyer: I I I mean I'm very impressed at how um how completely you've constructed u you know a portal into this work.

Remington Crawford: It's incredible in such a short time.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: It's a It's a lot of fun. So, we So, the experience that you're seeing though is for people like me,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: not the caregivers. So, at some point, we're going to go back maybe the next go and if you have time on your own, go back to the home screen and see there's a plans, then there's caregivers, and then enter the experience.

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: So, I entered as a user, not as a caregiver. But we can go back to what the caregiver portal looks like.

Robert Neimeyer: And what's the what's the easiest way to go

Danielle Franklin: And that's going to more just um maybe go to the meeting bridge tab

01:01:34

Robert Neimeyer: home?

Remington Crawford: Beautiful.

Danielle Franklin: uh the logo and see if you can click on it. Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah. Yeah, that did

Danielle Franklin: that did that take us it didn't take us to the home home though.

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Robert Neimeyer: it.

Remington Crawford: no.

Danielle Franklin: You know what?

Remington Crawford: It did. It didn't. It bounced back.

Danielle Franklin: We have to go it bounced back to our home but not to the main home.

Remington Crawford: It took us home. Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: The one I need to get back to. So, you're going to just go back to the link right now.

Remington Crawford: Oh.

Danielle Franklin: I'll put a home tab.

Robert Neimeyer: All right.

Danielle Franklin: Um, the meaning bridge link dot the main the main one we started in the chat here. Yeah. Um, uh, oh no, just like start a new window. We'll just start from the beginning. There's an uh, just X out of this one. Oh,

Robert Neimeyer: Well,

Danielle Franklin: you got here.

01:02:12

Danielle Franklin: You got here.

Robert Neimeyer: I I want to have her talk back and I

Danielle Franklin: You got to go all the way back. Geez. Okay. Sorry about that. That'll get fixed.

Robert Neimeyer: just

Danielle Franklin: Go to the very top, please. the very top at the top it says plans for caregivers notify me. We might need to make that more prominent

Robert Neimeyer: Uhhuh. And plans would be like user plans like to basic or

Danielle Franklin: um look at

Remington Crawford: Yeah,

Danielle Franklin: it. Yeah, take a look at the plans.

Robert Neimeyer: augmented.

Remington Crawford: exactly.

Danielle Franklin: I'd like you to look at that. I don't know what the costs would be. I just put random numbers.

Robert Neimeyer: God, this is terrific. I can't believe that you've accomplished all of this already. This Danielle Franklin: Yeah, there's more.

Robert Neimeyer: is

Danielle Franklin: I think we need to That's what I was saying. I I didn't realize you hadn't taken a look, so I'm sorry about that.

01:03:01

Remington Crawford: Oh, no. No.

Danielle Franklin: I'll send you like screenshots or

Remington Crawford: I'll I didn't realize it was this fleshed out yet.

Danielle Franklin: something.

Remington Crawford: So, I I will be going back through this tonight for certain.

Robert Neimeyer: I

Danielle Franklin: Okay. Well, take your time. And I love your feedback.

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: If it's easier for you to record yourself and send me an audio, that's fine, too. it because it takes too much time to type.

Remington Crawford: Oh, okay.

Danielle Franklin: Maybe

Remington Crawford: Yeah, that's a definite option. Do you What uh do you use to do the No,

Danielle Franklin: just do you have an iPhone? Okay.

Remington Crawford: I have an Android.

Danielle Franklin: Any any recording I mean we can we can transcribe.

Remington Crawford: Oh, no. I mean, what do you use to transcribe your audio clips?

Danielle Franklin: Oh, I usually just use um my phone to transcribe.

Remington Crawford: Oh, really?

Danielle Franklin: Yeah, I use Gemini.

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Danielle Franklin: I use um Apple. Like the the ASR on Apple's very good.

01:03:45

Remington Crawford: Oh, okay. Yeah, they solid state stuff's been pretty solid for AI. I'm I'm actually kind of impressed and I'm not really impressed with iPhone otherwise.

Danielle Franklin: Oh yeah, they're they were fine with AI. So So sorry.

Remington Crawford: This

Danielle Franklin: So for caregivers, uh Dr. Neyer, that's the other tab. I wanted you to look at that one. Yeah. So this would be like kind

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: of

Remington Crawford: neat. There's an engagement score. It's beautiful. Safety. I love this. Oh,

Robert Neimeyer: Now, this is a very naive question as well. I love the metaphor of walking along with the person,

Remington Crawford: so

Robert Neimeyer: and I think that that's it speaks to me. Um, it's non-threatening. However, I wonder if some people are a little too concrete and especially if they're encountering this in English as a second language, right? Uh,

Danielle Franklin: We put it in Spanish,

Robert Neimeyer: you know,

Danielle Franklin: too.

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, yeah.

01:04:46

Robert Neimeyer: But I mean, well, yeah. Yeah. But I mean it then I just wonder if someone would say,

Danielle Franklin: It won't be literal.

Robert Neimeyer: you know,

Danielle Franklin: It would translate.

Robert Neimeyer: I I don't actually take walks with people. Well, I just talked to them.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: So, I'm I'm just wondering if it if the metaphor is um will be immediately evident to everybody or if there'll be some users who will take it too concretely.

Danielle Franklin: We could change. We need to change this.

Robert Neimeyer: Um yeah,

Danielle Franklin: This is for this is something I need you to really So

Robert Neimeyer: but but I don't know. I mean, I I like it and uh the so the people you work with.

Danielle Franklin: the

Remington Crawford: Yeah, it's

Robert Neimeyer: So, would this be this when we say caregivers here?

Remington Crawford: good.

Robert Neimeyer: Um this would be like professional uh supporters.

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Danielle Franklin: you like people like in your network the right

Robert Neimeyer: Okay. See because of oftenimes in in this context caregivers can also be

01:05:36

Remington Crawford: Yes.

Danielle Franklin: bird,

Robert Neimeyer: understood frequently as family caregivers. So like of someone who is ill or dying or so we may

Danielle Franklin: right?

Robert Neimeyer: think about uh the language there and whether we want to use something like uh you know either professional caregivers or uh therapists or counselors

Danielle Franklin: Yes, I think that's fair. It's a good good very good. But also the people who are the caregivers might want insight into the the people who are grieving though not might not be clinicians or you know

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: therapists.

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: So family members

Robert Neimeyer: That's right. Well, yeah. See how the people you support are doing.

Danielle Franklin: um

Robert Neimeyer: um might be uh but I in any case I'm seeing the structure of this now where it has these uh half a dozen clients and uh you can sort of click and find out something more about them and what level of support they're

Danielle Franklin: So,

Robert Neimeyer: seeking.

Danielle Franklin: I think we have there's I'm not sure what the guidelines are for like the D. This is all dummy data obviously.

01:06:47

Robert Neimeyer: Right. Of course.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: Of course.

Danielle Franklin: But we should be able to

Robert Neimeyer: Oh, and you see like someone here like Maya is um yeah,

Danielle Franklin: um

Robert Neimeyer: she's just had a um a 24-minute companion conversation and an imagined letter. Um sleep low, meaning steady that this is very very

Danielle Franklin: Right.

Robert Neimeyer: helpful.

Danielle Franklin: And then we can do request consultant send a note so you can communicate with her and then you can she can request you know on her end the consult.

Robert Neimeyer: Uhhuh.

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: So I think that we have a lot of would it

Remington Crawford: it's schedule the console. Okay. Schedule it through.

Danielle Franklin: be something to maybe shepherd around with some of like your network the people who are helping others to see

Remington Crawford: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: right?

Danielle Franklin: if they get back on this one?

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: Okay that would be great.

Robert Neimeyer: So it when we feel it's ready to do that and it may be now um then

01:07:43

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: uh I guess what we do is we take away the dummy data or we'd leave that there as if they would discover that if they came to this

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: page.

Danielle Franklin: I think for now because we have the launch page still up that people would understand that this is all just for for like showing what what do so when we're ready

Robert Neimeyer: Uhhuh.

Danielle Franklin: to launch you know we'll have the all this real data right not dummy data but it's out there for you to send to people to look at the just

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: Right.

Danielle Franklin: like we did now you could say can you just take a look at this link and you know even I can make more prominent. You could send them maybe they can give us feedback on on that on the character link like,

Robert Neimeyer: Right. Right.

Danielle Franklin: "Oh yeah, that'd be great. I would use it if it did this stuff or that stuff." You know,

Robert Neimeyer: Uhhuh.

Danielle Franklin: that kind of feedback would be

01:08:40

Remington Crawford: Yeah, that may

Robert Neimeyer: Do you think it's ready to uh to post like on our Facebook page?

Danielle Franklin: great.

Robert Neimeyer: Um interested in the you know something we could come up with the appropriate language but the uses of AI to uh augment and facilitate your grief therapy efforts.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah, I think I think if

Robert Neimeyer: Um account our beta version of meaning bridge.

Danielle Franklin: you

Robert Neimeyer: Um uh you know and then a little more data and then click

Danielle Franklin: probably the only problem with posting stuff like that is that until they can sign

Robert Neimeyer: here.

Danielle Franklin: up because if we haven't set up the payment system and everything yet that

Robert Neimeyer: Better to wait on that.

Danielle Franklin: um I think yeah until ready to

Robert Neimeyer: You're saying at this point just send it to people who I can get feedback

Danielle Franklin: payment yeah we

Robert Neimeyer: from therapists and say, "Uh, yeah.

Remington Crawford: Yeah, just word of mouth right at the

Danielle Franklin: we could yeah I mean it would be it would be really good for us to get as

01:09:27

Robert Neimeyer: Okay,

Remington Crawford: moment.

Danielle Franklin: much feedback on the app as we can you know on both sides um but I know that we've taken up a little bit extra time than we had scheduled.

Robert Neimeyer: great.

Danielle Franklin: So, I didn't want to be rude, but um I wanted to see if there was, you know, a time maybe we can reconnect um on a regular until we can get this out because I do think that if we get the materials to to um I think there's a few things, you know, that we talked about that if we can uh get those going, we'll have a product, an MVP, baby.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah,

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: I agree. So, I'm happy to set up another time to now.

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: The the regular time is a little more complicated because I'm jumping all over the globe.

Danielle Franklin: Sure.

Robert Neimeyer: So, we're here this week and next week um on Monday we head to Mexico.

Danielle Franklin: Oh,

Robert Neimeyer: Um then we are back here on the Danielle Franklin: wow.

Robert Neimeyer: 24th and on the 1st we head to Singapore for a month.

01:10:36

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: Um so the those time zone shifts will make a difference. The going to Mexico is no problem. It actually brings me, you know, two hours closer to you guys because we'll be in the equivalent of US Central time and you're both East Coast, aren't you? So, so that that one's easy. But when we go to Singapore at the end of the month, it'll be more complicated. Um, we'd have to do a morning evening pairing in order to

Danielle Franklin: Okay. Well,

Robert Neimeyer: connect.

Danielle Franklin: I also think that we could probably do a lot of stuff through email just to get things going if you

Robert Neimeyer: No.

Danielle Franklin: wanted to. And um if you do have any time um to connect,

Remington Crawford: Sure.

Danielle Franklin: we can we can find an hour maybe or a half an hour just to sync if we need to, particularly if you're traveling so much. I don't want to um trouble you, but like I think you you know based on this conversation,

Robert Neimeyer: Sure.

01:11:31

Danielle Franklin: we could take some notes um and pass along some asks maybe for followup and then if we needed to do like a meeting um before your next big trip um let's try to resolve a day. But um the major update would come with your with your inputs I think and

Remington Crawford: Well, since you're in town next next week, uh do you want to set something up for next

Danielle Franklin: You know,

Remington Crawford: Sunday?

Danielle Franklin: the other thing is if you're traveling and um we get your feedback like your your general north star, this is what you want, then Remy and I can can make this happen too. And that might be more effective because we're trying to build this and but we just need to make sure that we're in alignment, right? that you're happy with where

Robert Neimeyer: Right. Oh, yeah.

Danielle Franklin: we're

Robert Neimeyer: I'm I'm perfectly fine with that and I think we're moving in such great directions now. I'm just uh very encouraged. Um and so you know as I was seeing

01:12:28

Danielle Franklin: happy you're

Remington Crawford: there.

Danielle Franklin: encouraged.

Robert Neimeyer: this you know again this is from a very naive standpoint technically and even more naive or equally naive in the area of business savvy. Um but I can imagine that there are three possible routes for this. One is just development and then offering it as an app. um you know with are attempting to put it out there the ways we can without the marketing becoming too

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: ownorous um and we could market directly to Bere people to the extent that we can do it with something like the the Google ads that you have possible access to.

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: I can put it out to the professional community fairly effectively. I can also put it on the PI website and we're you know we're having you know a fair number of site visits on that. So that's sort of the direct development and marketing.

Danielle Franklin: I

Robert Neimeyer: But then there are the other two routes of applying for funding. Um the the sort of grant uh route um and then there is also the

01:13:26

Danielle Franklin: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: investment route. Um is there a a you know a logic of advantages or disadvantages to

Danielle Franklin: Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: each of

Danielle Franklin: I think I think that I think that you I think that the logical advantage to going down the VC route is that you're

Robert Neimeyer: those?

Danielle Franklin: going to probably get money. Whereas if you go down the other route, it's a chance. You know, it's a you know, they're hard to get. The grants are difficult. So, you know, there's I think we could pull a product together. We'd need,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: you know, to know the business, all that stuff. and we'd pull some stuff together. But with the subscription model and with your name, you probably could get investors right out the gate, Dr. Nemer. Like, I mean,

Remington Crawford: Yes,

Danielle Franklin: you probably could get a few million dollars if you wanted.

Robert Neimeyer: Well,

Remington Crawford: girl.

Danielle Franklin: I'm not need that,

Robert Neimeyer: I think you know even a even a little income for each of us would be welcome.

01:14:19

Danielle Franklin: but

Robert Neimeyer: Um, and so uh yeah, let's let's just progress uh with this

Danielle Franklin: I'm so excited.

Robert Neimeyer: and shall I is it useful for me to send you

Remington Crawford: Be

Robert Neimeyer: text to upload uh to begin to feed this

Remington Crawford: fun.

Danielle Franklin: have my text my my phone number if it's easier. Um, anything you mean like text like like volumes of material? Yeah,

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: like word docs. Yes.

Remington Crawford: Yeah.

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: I thought you meant text messages for half a second.

Robert Neimeyer: No, no,

Danielle Franklin: Okay.

Robert Neimeyer: no, no. I No.

Danielle Franklin: Okay. So,

Robert Neimeyer: I'm I'm meaning it in the oldfashioned sense.

Danielle Franklin: um, no,

Robert Neimeyer: I'm a 20th century guy.

Danielle Franklin: that's fine. A a text document would be the lightest weight.

Robert Neimeyer: So,

Danielle Franklin: Yes. If you have any

Robert Neimeyer: no. Yeah. So,

Danielle Franklin: X

Robert Neimeyer: I can send you word docs or can I send you uh PDFs, that kind of thing, or does it need to be in Word?

01:15:08

Danielle Franklin: no it could be anything be links it could be could be any modality I could

Robert Neimeyer: Okay. So, I'll start doing that.

Danielle Franklin: take

Robert Neimeyer: All right. And then Remy,

Danielle Franklin: basically

Robert Neimeyer: you and I are going to look for a time to talk as well in the next few days about all manner of things. And we can brainstorm a bit and get back to uh to Danielle as Remington Crawford: All the matter.

Robert Neimeyer: well.

Remington Crawford: Absolutely.

Danielle Franklin: it was so fun to just put this together with you guys and Rey's but I I've been um

Robert Neimeyer: Yeah.

Danielle Franklin: grateful for this connection.

Robert Neimeyer: All

Danielle Franklin: I look forward to it every time. So,

Remington Crawford: Oh,

Danielle Franklin: thank you so much and thank you for your lovely messages.

Remington Crawford: it's

Danielle Franklin: It keeps my heart going and strong.

Robert Neimeyer: right,

Remington Crawford: independent

Danielle Franklin: All right,

Robert Neimeyer: Danielle.

Remington Crawford: positivity.

Danielle Franklin: you all take care and say hello to Carolyn for us day.

Robert Neimeyer: Okay, bye guys.

Remington Crawford: Bye guys.

Danielle Franklin: Bye. Have a good night.

Robert Neimeyer: How do I
