

A companion for grief, grounded in science.

Trauma-informed support for continuing bonds and meaning after loss — there whenever grief feels heavy.

THE NEED

Grief touches everyone.
Support rarely lasts.

Grief is not a problem to solve. It is a bond to carry forward.

The MeaningBridge approach, drawn from the life's work of Dr. Robert Neimeyer.

THE COMPANIONS

Two companions, two paths

Continuing Bonds

Stay connected to the person you lost — tend the relationship through memory and reflection, or give voice to them in conversation.

Meaning Reconstruction

Make sense of life after loss — your story, your identity, and what matters now — moving at your own pace, never rushed.

Ways to tend to your grief

Guided journaling

Prompts that meet you where you are.

A connection to your loved one

Hold them close in memory or conversation.

Self-guided practices

Breath work and gentle reflection.

Reflective inventories

See your grief with more clarity.

Voice entries

Speak when writing feels like too much.

Insights over time

Notice how you are slowly changing.

THE ETHOS

Gentle by design

Every screen is built to steady you — never to hook
you.

Trauma-informed and calm

No bright alarms, no urgency, no pressure.

No gamification

No streaks, points, or nudges to perform.

Crisis support, always near

One tap away on every single screen.

THE FOUNDATION

Grounded in clinical science

Built with Dr. Robert Neimeyer, a founder of the modern meaning-reconstruction field.

A validated grief measure quietly guides the level of care
— so support meets each person where they are.

We shift from numbers to narratives.
You never see a score.

-  Universal
Everyday support and reflection.
-  Targeted
Added structure for deeper grief.
-  Clinical
Connection to professional care.

FOR PROFESSIONALS

A bridge for care teams

Extend your care
between sessions, for grief counselors and clinics.

- A consented patient roster with care-tier badges
- Signals of client engagement, not eavesdropping
- Calm safety flags when someone needs more
- Membership in a trusted provider directory for potential referrals

Plans that follow need, not protocol

Support

Everyday support for continuing bonds and reflection.

Enhanced

Added structure for deeper or longer grief.

Specialist

Connected, professional-supported care.

Tiers mirror the level of care. Pricing shared at launch.

BEGIN WHENEVER YOU ARE READY

Carry your grief forward, together.
